Pittsburgh is an industrial steel town transformed into a modern city with vibrant businesses, a booming tech industry, world class healthcare, an appreciation for arts and culture - and of course, sports. Pittsburgh's renaissance, combined with the existing energy industry, including shale gas, has spread through western Pennsylvania. Jackson Kelly is perfectly situated to serve the legal needs of this region and its industries. Our Pennsylvania office is located in downtown Pittsburgh, and our experienced attorneys serve this region.

Our Pittsburgh attorneys represent and counsel clients in business law, corporate transactions and governance, healthcare acquisition and compliance, economic development, construction and development issues, energy and natural resources, and white collar compliance and criminal matters. Our attorneys are deeply rooted in their community, bringing both our deep knowledge of the region and its industries to work collaboratively with our clients to enable successful results.
