

Not every legal dispute is decided by a court of law. Many times, parties find themselves presenting a case to a mediator, arbitrator, or special master. These alternatives to traditional litigation provide more cost-effective, flexible, and discrete ways to resolve disputes. Jackson Kelly attorneys are well versed in the techniques needed to resolve disputes effectively and have gained experience across a wide range of areas and industries. We have the experience to help clients resolve disputes outside the traditional courtroom environment.

Our attorneys have for many years been trusted by their colleagues to provide mediation, arbitration, and special master services, including:

- Commercial and contract
- Construction
- Energy and natural resources
- Labor and employment
- Medical malpractice
- Personal injury
- Product liability
