

Jackson Kelly's Renewable Energy practice group has extensive experience in renewable energy projects, having represented project developers, project owners, and utilities considering investments in renewable energy. The group's members have consulted on siting, state regulatory certification, real property, environmental, taxation, and financing aspects in the renewable energy space. Whether the issue is constructing a new renewable project or complying with an environmental regulation, the Jackson Kelly Renewable Energy team is ready to assist.